—All soils are improved by mixing. The physical properties of the soil have an important influence upon its average fertility. The admixture of pure sand with clay soil profuces an alteration which is often benefic at, and which is almost wholly mechanical. The sand opens the pores of the clay and makes it more permeable to the air.

—Smut in oats is the same as wheat smut, and should be treated in the same way. It is sown with the seed, and, to prevent it, the seed should be steeped as wheat is in a solution of one pound of sulphate of copper in four gallens of water or a strong brine of common salt the day before it is sown. The seed soaks up the solution if not applied too freely.

—The Chinese make tea as follows:

The tea is put in a clean tea-pot and hot water poured on it and left to stand fifteen or twenty minutes and steep. Here is the way we make our tea. He thereupon took off a cover with a cushion of cotten two inches thick on the under side and lifted out a pretty porcelain tea-pot after the boiling water is poured into it upon the necessary quantity of tea, is set in this non-conducting receptable and steeps fifteen minutes, said the Celestial narrator, "and th

—A very sad case of accidental poisoning occurred recently in Chicago, the victim being Mabel L. Heaford, the 2-year-old daughter and only child of Mr. and Mrs. William Heaford, of 42 North Curtis Street. Mrs. Heaford was packing her trunk, preparatory to leaving the city, and left a paper containing strychnine in the bottom of it. Little Mabel was playing in the room, and during her mother's temporary absence found the paper and swallowed a portion of the strychnine. She was discovered shortly after, and died in twenty minutes in great agony. The mother became almost frantic from grief, and standing over the dead body of her beautiful child, she sobbed out. "There is my little angel. She was all we had; and her father is away, too, and knows nothing at all about it. Yesterday she stood in the door throwing kisses at him, and saying, Good-by, papa, as he went away, and now to think that she is dead! Oh, my God!" The Coroner's investigation resulted in a verdict of accidental death.

—A Rome dispatch says: The Pope recently ordered the Cardinal Vicar to institute a strict inquiry into the sacrilegious traffic in spurious relies. The Cardinal Vicar accordingly has addressed a circular to the Catholic administrators through the world, intimating that no bodies have been taken from the catacombs for thirty years, and warning them against impostors. Entire osteological specimens, purporting to be the remains of early Christian martyrs freshly dug from the catacombs in Rome, have been shipped to America.

-Chicago public schools have by crowding been forced to adopt an excellent plan for the younger children. They are only given a half day's tuition, or three hours per day, and thus two lots can receive schooling each day. The children's health is better for it, and they probably improve in their studies better than if compelled to attend longer and be crammed.—Dr. Foote's Health Monthly for April.

—The wise ones say that nothing is so hard to bear as prosperity; but most men would like to engage in some hard work of that description just to have a practical illustration of the adage.

Nerve impulses are conducted along the nerves very slowly in comparison to the speed of electricity along a copper wire. The latter travels sixteen million times as fast as a nerve impulse, and yet the nerve impulse travels with the speed of the fastest railroad train.—

Mr. W. H. H. Aundom, one of the first settlers in the town of Gilmantown, Wis., and one of the most industrious and hard-working men in the county, has been very severely troubled with rhenmatic pams during the past few years, so much at times that he was disabled from performing manual labor. Learning of the wonderful cures effected by the use of St. Jacobs Oli he procured a few bottles and experienced immediate relief. Many others of our sequaintances have used it and express themselves as highly gratified with the relief it has afforded them. This king of medicines can be bought everywhere.
